WILL GIVE $200 FOR AUTO ENGINE

Modest Citizen First to Come Forward with Substantial Gift toward Modern Fire Fighting Apparatus for the Borough.

A citizen of town, who does not wish his name given publicity, this morning announced to Fire Chief Plank that he would head the subscription list for the automobile fire engine with a personal gift of $200. "If I find that the plan meets local support generally you can count on me for an additional gift", the generous resident is quoted as saying.

This, in view of the fact that the party in question was not asked to contribute and, in addition, that no subscription list has as yet been started has given the firemen no little encouragement and, at the next regular meeting of the company, definite plans will be made to go ahead with the proposition to provide the town with adequate fire fighting facilities. It is believed that, with the popular sentiment to strongly in favor of a new engine, citizens and firms will be quick to respond and the company feels that council will not turn a deaf ear to their plea for a substantial appropriation.

The Buohl fire, it is said, has proved one of the best arguments for a new engine that the town has had for a long while and sentiment is at the point where some definite and favorable action can be taken.

"General Meade", the steamer, is not good for many more fires, argue those who favor the automobile engine, and they also say that, it will be the better policy to get the best modern apparatus rather than a chemical engine. The firemen are practically a unit in opposing the chemical engine plan, saying that it would do only for small blazes and that then the town would be helpless should a big fire get a start.

MT. ST. JOSEPH'S IS ENDANGERED

Emmitsburg Department Called out when Ten Acres of Burning Grass Threaten to Set Buildings on Fire.

The buildings of St. Joseph's College and Academy, near Emmitsburg, were threatened with destruction Wednesday morning when the dried grass on a part of the campus caught fire and the flames rapidly advanced toward the nearest building in which gasoline is stored. Men about the institution beat back the fire and used chemicals to check the flames.

The Emmitsburg fire department was called, but their assistance was not needed. Nearly ten acres of ground were burned over, and because a high wind was blowing in the direction of the buildings much apprehension was felt for a while. The fire started from a spark thrown from a passing engine on the Emmitsburg railroad.

When it was seen that the buildings were endangered the college authorities called the Emmitsburg Fire Department, which quickly responded. The college maintains a very good equipment for fire fighting, but it was deemed advisable to call help from Emmitsburg.

A high wind was blowing, and there was grave danger that the gasoline house would take fire. In that event the handsome buildings of the college would probably have caught and possibly have been destroyed.

SPRING FLITTING SEASON NOW ON

Some Try to Avoid the Rush of Next Week. Residents of Town Change their Houses. Some Move from Town to the Country.

In order to avoid the last minute rush of the April first flitting season, many residents of Gettysburg have started to move to their new places of residence and daily the vans may be seen taking huge loads of furniture through the streets to their new homes. Among the removals now in progress or already accomplished are the following:

Jacob G. Slonaker from Hanover street to the John Blocher property, 309 Baltimore street.

Charles Holtzworth from the Kalbfleisch building to the McPherson Block.

Miss Ella Toot from York street to the property of J. Allen Dickson, Chambersburg street.

Jacob Snyder from Carlisle street to Michael Orner's house, 336 York street.

Walter Cullison from 133 West High street to 240 South Washington street.

Mrs. Ida Leech from West Middle street to Route 3 Gettysburg.

CASHTOWN

Cashtown—Howard Martz has moved to J. C. Minter's farm, and Mr. Minter moved to the Sheely property in this place. H. A. Bucher and C. J. Gallagher are moving into their new houses.

A great deal of sickness prevails here and the physicians are busy. The illness seems to be contagious and starts suddenly with a chill, soon weakening the patient.

The masons have completed the wall for Dr. Woomey's new house and the carpenters will soon start to put up the frame.

The farmers in this section are busy ploughing and getting ready to sow their oats. Others are ploughing for corn.

W. G. Rebert's sale in this place on Tuesday was well attended and things brought good prices.

S. F. Shultz, game warden, received fifteen English Ringneck pheasants from the State which he will place at different locations in lots of three. The birds are not supposed to be placed on advertised land, but they will be looked after and cared for by the people where they are located. This is a good chance to get a fine lot of nice game in our country and hunters should be careful not to shoot any of these birds.

F. J. Hartman is building a large kitchen and upper story to his house on High street.

Miss Emma Schwartz has replaced the picket fence in front of her house with a fancy post and rod fence.

Our school closed on Wednesday.

ITALY BOASTS OF FINE ARMY; HER NAVY ALSO IS FORMIDABLE

Total Land War Strength of 3,400,000 Men—Newest Dreadnoughts to Be Ready May 1.

Bersaglieri Regarded as Fleetest Infantrymen in World. Alpine Troops Are Great Mountain Climbers.

ITALY'S total army war strength is roughly estimated at 3,400,000 men, but of these over 2,000,000 comprise what is known as the territorial militia, which is practically untrained. There are twelve army corps, each district except Rome having two infantry divisions. Rome has three. Recently the corps on the Austrian frontier has been greatly strengthened, and the others since the beginning of hostilities in Europe have been mobilizing to their full war strength.

The organization of Italy's permanent army includes ninety-six regiments of line infantry, twelve regiments of bersaglieri and eight Alpine regiments, in all 369 battalions. There are twenty-nine regiments of cavalry and thirty-six of field artillery. The army also has a regiment of horse artillery, two complement of 1,000 officers and men each.

The following pre-mobilization announcement was published in Rome:

"The first and second categories of the ten classes from 1886 to 1895 are to be assigned to the first line troops; the third category of the same classes, besides the three categories of the ten classes from 1876 to 1885, are to be assigned to the mobile and territorial militia."

Thus all able-bodied men between the ages of twenty and forty are to be included. Four classes—those of 1892, 1893, 1894, 1895—are now with the colors. The three classes recently trained and sent home are liable to immediate mobilization.

All Italians are liable to military service for nineteen years from the men mentally keen and resourceful. At the same time he wished that they be thoroughly active physically.

In a peculiar way the great general went about training his men. One of his ideas was to have all the doors secretly locked when the men were in quarters and to have the first dinner bugle sounded. A moment later the second dinner bugle sounded. The men, in obedience to the call, rushed with their pans in their hands to the doors. The doors were all locked of course.

But the men must get their mess. The orders were to present themselves immediately after the second call, get their rations and return at once to the quarters. There was nothing left to do but make ropes of blankets and sheets and let themselves down from the windows while they held the pans in their teeth. They got their allowance of the usual thick soup and bread. The bread was easy; it went into their pockets. But the soup! There was no other way; they went up as they came down, pans in mouths. Some got back with the most of their soup; some got back with half of it; some got back with the pan wet. But out of 700 men in one trial all but two got back up the improvised ropes.

The Bersaglieri have continued to be a national institution. Their traditions of readiness in emergency have not been allowed to die.

No less remarkably trained and no less picturesque are the Alpine troops. The mountains are their home. Whole regiments have been drilled in all the difficulties of battling above the clouds regiments of mountain artillery, ten regiments of coast artillery, two of fortress artillery and six regiments of engineers. A large battalion of aviators has been organized in the last few years for use in war.

Italy also has a fairly large navy. It comprises twenty-one battleships, ten armored cruisers, thirteen protected cruisers, seventy-seven torpedo boats, about thirty torpedo boat destroyers and about twenty submarines. Incidentally Italy was the first Mediterranean power to begin the construction of battleships of the Dreadnought type.

The newest Italian Dreadnoughts, the Andrea Doria and Caio Duilio, have completed their speed and artillery trials.

It is likely that they will be put in commission by May 1. The completion of the two new vessels brings the number of Italy's Dreadnoughts up to six. The first vessel of this class in the Italian navy was the Dante Alighieri, completed in January, 1913. Four super-Dreadnoughts, carrying fifteen inch guns each, are projected.

Are Sister Ships.
The Andrea Doria and Caio Duilio are sister ships, begun respectively in March and April, 1912, and launched in the spring of 1913. Their general specifications are identical with those of the Conte di Cavour, Leonardo da Vinci and Giulio Cesare, which were laid down in 1910 and are now in commission. The length of these ships on the water line is 575.8 feet. They have a displacement of 22,340 tons and an indicated speed of twenty-three knots. They are driven by Parsons turbines. The protection comprises a complete belt of armor ten inches thick amidships, tapering to 4.7 inches thick at the ends, with heavily armored turrets, barbettes and conning tower and an armored deck. Each of the new vessels carries thirteen twelve-inch, sixteen six-inch and eighteen three-inch guns and three torpedo tubes.

The three ships begun in 1910 have eighteen 4.7 inch guns instead of the six inch guns on the later vessels. The new vessels are intended to have a age of twenty. Two years are spent with the colors, six "en conge," four in the mobile militia and seven in the territorial militia. In case of general mobilization the peace strength of 15,172 officers and 289,448 men is increased to a total of 3,433,150 as follows:

Officers ..... 41,872
First line troops ..... 23,418
Second line troops ..... 49,667
Mobile militia ..... 228,991
Territorial militia ..... 2,291,202

Total ..... 3,433,150
The categories of each year's recruits are regulated by family conditions specified by law. Those belonging to the first category pass only one year with the colors, but must pay about $200 to $300 annually thereafter for exemption. This privilege ceases in case of a call for general mobilization such as is now imminent in Italy.

Picturesque Alpine Troops.

When the armies of Italy are hurled into the great European conflict some of the most interesting and picturesque actors of the world's war stage will take their parts.

All eyes will be upon the Bersaglieri, with their plumes of cocks' feathers, and the Alpine troops who march up perpendicular cliffs with more ease than they walk on level ground. And there are the royal carabinieri and the Royal Piedmont regiment of cavalry, both holding celebrated positions among all the fighting forces of the world.

Chose the Poorest Material.
This corps was created by General Lamarmora, one of the founders of the Italian national army. The general asked the king for the worst soldiers in the service so that he could mold them according to his own plans. His first and chief plan was to make his or on the steep sides of cliffs, where only avalanches are supposed to travel. In the maneuvers are to be seen long files of men, small, looking like flies on the wall of some terrible precipice, dragging inch by inch some big field gun by means of cables and pulleys.

The whole idea of such training is that some day it would be necessary to meet an enemy equally daring and skillful among the dangerous Alpine solitudes. Perhaps that day is now at hand, and the Carle and Rhenish Alps on the border between Italy and Austria may see battles most strange in comparison with the ordinary aspects of warfare. Here may be aerial battles of another kind, scarcely less thrilling and novel.

Swim Deep Rivers.

Were it not for these most picturesque parts of the Italian army there would be more cheers for the Royal Piedmont regiment, one of the most celebrated corps, a corps whose favorite maneuvering feat is swimming deep rivers on horseback. Those who have witnessed these maneuvers tell of seeing a prince of the house of Savoy plunge into the river Arno at Florence at the head of his hussars and the entire regiment swim across, each trooper with his arm about his trained charger's neck.

Then there would be more eyes for the royal carabinieri, soldiers who are chosen with the utmost care and who are greatly esteemed for their noble traditions. The carabinieri are composed of all the military corps which have charge of the public peace and order in the different provinces of the kingdom.

Only a few years ago the Italian soldiers had a taste of real war. In 1908 there was trouble with Emperor Menelik of Abyssinia. Italy had dreamed of a protectorate and a vast African empire. Honorable defeats at the hands of the fierce Abyssinians soon turned into complete disaster. But the Italians came back home with a few lessons which they turned to good account in the brief victorious war with Turkey.

Medical Advertising. How to Destroy Catarrh Germs and End Catarrh Forever

Catarrh, according to a noted authority, is a germ disease and the only way to cure it so it will stay cured and never come back is to kill and drive out of your system the catarrhal germs which have found lodgment there. When the germs go the catarrh will stop.

There is nothing better for destroying catarrh germs than breathing into your nose and lungs the pleasant, soothing, healing, germ destroying air of Hyomei (pronounced High-ome) made from purest oil of Eucalyptus and combined with other powerful healing, antiseptic and germ destroying ingredients. Hyomei penetrates and heals the inflamed swollen membranes of your nose and throat, stops discharges, clears the passages and completely overcomes the disease by destroying its cause. For catarrh germs cannot live in your body after Hyomei reaches them. The People's Drug Store and many other good druggists in Gettysburg and vicinity have long sold Hyomei on a positive guarantee of successful results or money back and find this generous policy pays.

Voltaire, in his "Philosophical Dictionary," says: "The more married men you have the fewer crimes there will be. Examine the frightful columns of your criminal calendar; you will find there a hundred youths executed to one father of a family. Marriage renders men more virtuous and more wise. The father of a family is not willing to blush for his children; he is afraid to make shame their inheritance."

Are You One?

Anyone can begin a thing, most people can finish one already begun, but those who can always be depended upon to go straight ahead from start to finish are few and far between.

Pale blue voile stamped with deeper blue flowers and green foliage is used in a pleasing manner in the development of this charming frock. The shirred tunic falls over a tucked foundation of plain blue voile and a particularly smart touch is given to the waist by a piping of black satin. About the neck is worn a band of black velvet with a ruffling of silk gauze at the back. Five yards of 40-inch figured material and 2 yards of plain voile make the dress.

Beginning with the waist, to-day's dressmaking lesson will deal entirely with its construction. First, tuck the front and back, creasing on slot perforations; stitch 1/2 inch from folded edges. Center-front indicated by large "O" perforations. Close under-arm seam as notched, close shoulder seam.

Gather lower edge between double "T" perforations. Sew stay to lower edge of waist, centers even, small "o" perforation at under-arm seam. Sew collar to neck edge as notched, finish upper edge with pleated ruffling and adjust stay, matching small and large "O" perforations.

Shirred sleeves are so fashionable that the home sewer should know how to make them. First close the seam, as notched. Form shirred tucks, creasing on slot perforations, gather one-quarter inch from folds; draw in the desired size and stitch tape underneath.

NEVER have styles been so snappy; designs and color effects so full of vigor as you will find them in the new line for Spring and Summer.

Order your Suit now and we will have it ready for Easter.

NEW LIGHT CAST ON TUBERCULOSIS

Cases in Last Stages Should Have More Care.

DISCHARGED, LATER CURED.

Many in First Stage Dismissed as Symptom Free Have Relapsed—Present Tendency to Favor Patients With Early Symptoms of Disease May Not Be Always Wise.

The Lancet of London prints an interesting editorial review of the ultimate results of sanitarium treatment of tuberculosis based on a paper read by Professor Bang at a meeting of the Medical Society of Copenhagen. The paper, freely illustrated with statistics, and the long discussion which followed its presentation have been reported in the Hospitalist. The paper dealt chiefly with the results of sanitarium treatment estimated many years after the discharge of the patients from the institutions. "The many tables and statistical analyses displayed by Professor Bang," says the Lancet, "provoked a lively discussion as to the merits of statistics in the estimation of sanitarium results, and he admitted that a detailed knowledge of each case is necessary for the judgment of sanitarium results by the standard of figures. One striking feature of his paper was the good prognosis which his figures indicated for working class patients admitted to a sanitarium in the second and third stages of the disease. "It has long been held that the prognosis in pulmonary tuberculosis is best in the first stage of the disease and declines as the second and third stages are reached. Indeed, this view is so generally regarded as a truism that its accuracy has scarcely been questioned. That it does not embrace the whole truth is shown by Professor Bang, whose figures are obtained from several sanitariums in Denmark, where perhaps more than in any other country sanitarium treatment has been thoroughly tested.

Relapses Are Frequent. "The relative numbers of patients discharged 'symptom free' from sanitariums do, indeed, fall with the stages of the disease, but when the fate of all the patients is investigated several years later many of the 'symptom free' are found to have relapsed, while patients discharged unimproved in the second and third stages of the disease are often found to have regained their capacity for work.

"Professor Bang showed that only two-thirds of the patients in the first stage, discharged as 'symptom free,' were fit for work several years later. On the other hand, the number of patients in the second stage, discharged as 'symptom free,' had actually been augmented several years later, their ranks being increased by one-third by patients who, though discharged as fit for work in the second stage of the disease, had ultimately regained their capacity for work.

"This paradoxical result is even more striking in the third stage of the disease. The explanation of this phenomenon is to be found in the faultiness of the present classification of the disease according to its extent, but not according to its virulence, and to the patient's power of resistance and to many other factors. In many cases patients are classified in the second or third stage, although on admission to a sanitarium the disease is practically quiescent. Professor Bang suggests that the present tendency to favor patients in the first stage of the disease in preference to patients in the other stages when sanitarium accommodation is limited may not be always wise.

"Though the patients in the latter stages have hitherto been regarded as incurable and treated with scant attention, he urges that they should in the future be regarded more hopefully and given the chance of sanitarium treatment, even though this is only for a short time. His observation that patients often relapse who are discharged from a sanitarium with the disease arrested in its first stage, whereas others often recover who are discharged unimproved in the second stage, is not at first sight flattering to sanitarium treatment.

"His estimate of the value of the present methods of classification of the disease is also deprecatory, and, as one speaker during the discussion candidly suggested, the most reliable classification would be the following: (1) Patients that recover and (2) those that do not."

FLYING, DROPS HOODOO RING. New York Girl, in Aeroplane, Throws Away Unlucky Turquoise.

Miss Josephine Lewis Peet of New York, who is in Palm Beach, Fla., with her husband and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pope of New York, went up in an aeroplane against the wishes of her relatives. At the height of a thousand feet she got a bad scare when the machine tilted. She pulled a turquoise ring from her finger and threw it away, having heard it was bad luck to wear the stone.

Unpopular Listeners. "I really dislike to talk to her; she has such a habit of finishing one's sentences for one. You know the kind?" "Yes, they listen faster than you can talk to them."

The Scrap Book

Couldn't Stand the Hoodoo. He was a college boy, home for vacation, and his mother's cook had prevailed upon him to lend her $5 for two weeks. Much to the surprise of the family, cook departed from her practice of keeping such funds indefinitely and paid the debt promptly. When questioned about it she said:

"No, dat boy never once ask me fer dat money. He never dun me at all, but when I serves his late breakfast in de mornin' he always leave five biscuits on de plate when he used to eat 'em all, an' he tells me he likes five lumps of sugar in his coffee when everybody knows dat's too sweet. Den when I goes in my kitchen I finds five raw potatoes on my table an' five lumps of coal laid by my stove. Dem fives jes' natchally haunts me, so I pays him."—New York Post.

At the Door. I thought myself indeed secure. So fast the door, so firm the lock; But, lo, he tiddling comes to lure My parent ear with timorous knock.

My heart was stone could I withstand The sweetness of my baby's plea, But, lo, he tiddling comes to lure My parent ear with timorous knock.

I threw aside the unfinished book Regardless of its tempting charms, And, opening wide the door, I took My laughing darling in my arms.

Who knows but in eternity I, like the truant child, shall wait, The glories of a life to be, Beyond the Heavenly Father's gate?

And will that Heavenly Father heed The truant's supplicating cry As at the outer door I plead, 'Tis I, O Father, only I?"

—Eugene Field.

A Shining Mark. A lady grievously tormented with a corn on her toe was advised by one of her friends to anoint it with phosphorus, which in a weak moment she did, but forgot to tell her husband before retiring at night. It had just turned 12 when the husband awoke and was startled to see something sparkling at the foot of the bed. He had never heard of a firefly in the locality, nor did he ever remember seeing such a terrible looking object as the toe presented. Reaching carefully out of bed till he found one of his slippers, he raised it high in the air and brought it down with great force upon the mysterious light.

A shriek and an avalanche of bed clothes, and all was over. When at last he released himself from the bed clothes he discovered his wife gripping her toe and groaning in a corner of the bedroom, but she had got rid of that phosphorused corn.—London Graphic.

Naming a Horse. Commenting on the curious names often given to racehorses, a writer in a London daily recalled the historic case of Potomac. The Earl of Egremont had a horse he intended to call Potomac, and in going around the stable one evening he gave the stable boy in charge of the horse a piece of chalk and told him to write the name on the corn bin. The boy wrote Pot and then, evidently in some doubt as to the correct spelling, finished the word by repeating the letter "o" eight times. This amused Lord Egremont and his friends that the horse was so named forthwith.

Tragic Tale of a Tragedian. "The awfulest and the funniest story I ever lived through," said a sprightly English actress, "was when a certain well known London actor-manager, whose name I dare not divulge, was doing a tremendous curse scene on a darkened stage. He had the audience spellbound with his sonorous declamation, which, of course, they didn't know depended largely upon his ample mouthful of false teeth. At the very climax of his blood curdling maledictions the entire dental collection dropped out suddenly in the excitement of the moment and bounded into some obscure hiding place. The tragedian's mighty voice died down to an unintelligible mumble as he groped about frantically in search of the missing masticators. We were all too helpless from laughter to be of much help in this critical situation. At last, after what seemed like half an hour of the most hysterical suspense, the stage manager located the teeth with the aid of a dark lantern and restored them to the frantic star, who clapped them into his mouth and began cursing again with redoubled earnestness. I never knew what the audience thought, and no one ever dared to ask the actor-manager."

Not Stumped. Once, when the renowned Mrs. Siddons was playing in the Theater Royal, Dublin, she, as Lady Macbeth, came to that part where a drum should sound and she exclaims: 'A drum! A drum! Macbeth doth come!'

There was some difficulty or neglect in obtaining the necessary instrument, and to her amazement a trumpet sounded.

She immediately saw how absurd it would be to say "drum" while the well known sound of the trumpet met the ears of the vast audience. So she said: 'A trumpet! A trumpet!' then stopped short, not knowing how to rime it, when a voice from the gallery called out "Macbeth doth stomp it" at which the house broke out into one peal of laughter and applause, and the tragedienne advanced to the footlights and bowed her acknowledgment for the relief.

Came Together. George and Robert are twins. One day, when they were about eight a little playmate neighbor boy of about the same age came running up to where they were playing in the yard with this startling exclamation: "Oh, say, I got a little brother at my house; he came last night." "Hub, that's nothing," said George. "I brought my brother with me when I came."

REPRESENTATIVE GETS ANSWER

Constituent Shows How Excess Crew Men Displace Others.

Philadelphia, March 24. John McClintock, a Representative from Philadelphia, in reply to a constituent who asked him to vote for repeal of the Pull Crew Law, wrote as follows:

"I desire to ask if you think it is right to legislate out of employment men who are now in the employ of the railroads, whose wages aggregate $2,000,000, especially at this time, when there is so much unemployment? This question brought a rejoinder as follows:

"Replying to your letter of March 19, my answer would be, first, that there was no reason nor right in legislating into jobs some 2400 excess trainmen now employed on railroads in Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

"Second, it is axiomatic that employment to be of the largest economic advantage and for the greatest good of all, must be productive or useful in character. These excess trainmen get some $2,000,000 a year, but do nothing which adds either to the safety or efficiency of train operation.

"Obliged by law to employ these men, the railroads virtually are compelled to squander $2,000,000 which they would otherwise have to expend for useful purposes. So expended, it would provide productive work for now unemployed men and women in other lines. They would get the money for services of value."

The above article is furnished by the railroads in their efforts for the repeal of the Pull Crew Bill.

LOST HIS ONE CHANCE.

He Was on the Watch For It, Too, but It Gave Him the Slip.

In a certain western city an alderman had tried for fifteen years to win the mayoralty office. Time and again he had run only to be defeated. It so chanced that the election for aldermen was in an off year from that of the mayor. For this reason the alderman who longed to be mayor was always able to run for alderman after he had been defeated for the mayoralty.

And he was always elected alderman of his ward by increasing majorities. He was always elected president of the board. And in all these fifteen years he yearned to exercise the duties of mayor.

It happened that the mayor fell ill one time and the aspiring alderman announced that if the city's chief executive became incapacitated he would claim the right to act as mayor and let the people of the city know in some way that he was mayor indeed.

The mayor had a bad case of rheumatism. At last he did not come down to his office, and the head of the alderman board kept his ear to the ground ready to act at a second's notice.

Two days went by. Three days. A week. On the telephone it was always reported that the mayor was about the same.

At last the alderman could wait no longer. Ten days was too much for a mayor to be away. He drove to the mayor's house one night ready to ask him why he didn't delegate some one to act for him now that he had been ill so long.

A garbulous servant answered his ring. The president of the board of aldermen pushed his way into the vestibule.

"How is your master tonight?" he asked solemnly.

"Indeed, sir, he's a great deal better. In fact, he's all right, and he's got back home."

"Got back home! Why, where has he been? I understood he was very ill."

"So he was, sir, but they thought it best to take him away to Hot Springs ten days ago. He got along fine. They didn't want any one to know he had gone away because there's some big bluffer of a buttin' in alderman who is just aching to be the mayor and toss things about, so, to fool him, they kept it quiet and just answered him polite like, on the telephone every day."—New York Sun.

Admirably Equipped. Cardinal Mezzofanti, the famous Italian linguist, who died at the age of seventy-five, knew and could speak more than fifty languages. He could entertain his English friends with specimens of the Yorkshire dialect and his French or German visitors with the patois of their respective countries. "Dear me," exclaimed Lord Byron, to whom this was told; "he ought to have been the custodian of the tower of Babel!"

Do the Right Thing. That which can be done with perfect convenience and without loss is not always the thing that most needs to be done or which we are most imperatively required to do.—John Ruskin.

Came Together. George and Robert are twins. One day, when they were about eight a little playmate neighbor boy of about the same age came running up to where they were playing in the yard with this startling exclamation: "Oh, say, I got a little brother at my house; he came last night." "Hub, that's nothing," said George. "I brought my brother with me when I came."

If Mixed with Sulphur It Darkens so Naturally Nobody can Tell

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's treatment, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite a sensible and mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy" for about 50 cents a bottle. It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray beard of abundance which is so attractive, besides, prevents dandruff, hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and ap-

Useful Cement.

To make cement for stopping leaks and holes in iron pipe, etc., secure about two pounds of iron shavings or borings from a foundry; add one ounce of powdered sal ammoniac and one ounce of sulphur. Mix with water to a paste and use at once, as it hardens very fast. This will resist heat and water and will be found useful for many purposes. Steel wool or shavings may be secured from any paint or drug store.

Cause for Complaint.

A quiet little Chicago lad serves as altar boy at the family church on certain days of the week. He has been attending rather often than usual of late, and his mother recently inquired the reason, adding that he seemed to her to be doing the work of himself and his comrades. "So I am," grumbled the boy sharply, "but I can't help it. That darned kid always ditches his dates!"

If one's intimate in love or friendship cannot, or does not, share all one's intellectual tastes or pursuits, that is a small matter. Intellectual companions can be found easily in men and books. # ALLIES LAND ARMY AT DARDANELLES

Force Takes Position For a Great Attack.

PORTER ABANDONS CAPITAL

The Russian Warships Bombard the Turkish Forts in Asia Minor, Sinking a Transport.

London, March 25.—A force of allied troops was landed on the peninsula of Gallipoli from transports in the Gulf of Saros, according to a dispatch from Athens to the Daily Express.

A general attack upon the fortifications of the Dardanelles is to be undertaken immediately on the arrival of further French and British warships, now on their way to join the attacking squadron.

Reviewing the situation, military experts in London and elsewhere have expressed their belief that to open the straits the marine forces must be well supported on land. It has been said lately that a strong detachment of French troops was on its way to the Dardanelles.

A dispatch to the London Daily Chronicle from Kustendje, Rumania, says:

"The Russian fleet is active in the Black Sea. Several Turkish forts in Asia Minor have been bombarded and a transport and laden coilers sunk."

"In Constantinople the general impression is that the forts and other defensive works of the Dardanelles have been virtually beaten down by the allies and cannot hold out much longer. Everybody who is able to do so is fleeing from the capital. The city is deserted except for the poorer inhabitants and the military guard, the seat of government having been transferred to Asia."

A statement was given out by the official press bureau in London telling of a defeat inflicted on a Turkish force operating against the Egyptian town of Suez. The statement says:

"On the 23d inst., at dawn, one of our patrols discovered a party of the enemy near El Kubri post, opposite Suez. Shots were exchanged."

"Aeroplane estimated the number at about 1000, composed of infantry, artillery and a few cavalry."

"The guns of El Kubri opened fire and inflicted casualties, whereupon the enemy retired and formed a camp eight miles east of the Suez canal."

"Early Tuesday morning a force under General Sir George Youngblood band attacked and routed the enemy, who is now in full retreat."

"A prisoner says this force came direct from Bir Ey Saba, having taken twelve days on the way, and that General von Traumer and three other German officers are with it."

Bombardment Is Renewed.

Paris, March 25.—Bombardment of the Turkish fortifications in the Dardanelles was resumed on Tuesday morning by an allied fleet, according to an Athens dispatch to the Havar agency in Paris. The warships were accompanied in the straits by a number of mine sweepers.

Another British Battleship Disabled.

Berlin, March 25.—Included in the items of news given out by the Overseas News agency is the following: "The Giornale d'Italia, of Rome, has received a dispatch from Athens saying that the British battleship Cornwallis has been disabled in the Dardanelles fighting."

DROP BOMBS ON GERMAN BASE

British Aviators Set Fire to Submarine Plant Near Antwerp.

London, March 25.—The British admiralty issued a statement saying that a British air raid had been successfully carried out on German submarines at Hoboken, three miles outside of Antwerp.

The aviators bombarded and set on fire the German plants for constructing the under-water craft.

The aviators, belonging to the royal navy air service, flew across Belgium.

The aerial attack on the Hoboken works was conducted with great skill and daring, as the Germans had mounted high angle guns with which to bombard hostile aerial craft along the Belgian coast.

Dupont Guard Fires at Man.

Paterson, N. J., March 25.—Harry D. Pippert, a guard at the Dupont powder plant at Haskell, N. J., fired at a man who was prowling near a big powder magazine when the man refused a command to halt. The prowler dashed at Pippert, and in the struggle ensuing Pippert shot himself in the left wrist and dropped to the ground. Other guards hastened to the spot, but the man had escaped.

Large Wives Seldom Deserted.

Chicago, March 25.—Wives who are physically large and who are willing workers seldom are deserted, according to a report on the causes of desertion in Chicago, made by investigators for the bureau of public welfare. The percentage of desertion was shown to be the lowest among Italian and the highest among the American born.

Operations against the Dardanelles ceased temporarily while preparations were put on foot to land a force at Strynna. It is predicted that this city will soon fall before the fire of the British and French fleets. Vice Admiral Sir R. H. Peirse is in command.

BIG BATTLE RAGING IN CARPATHIANS

Furious Fighting Marks New Drive by Russians.

Berlin, March 25.—Reports from the Carpathian mountains indicate that one of the greatest and most sanguinary battles of the campaign is now raging.

A special correspondent of the Berlin Lokal Anzeiger telegraphs as follows:

"The great bloody battle is now in full swing in the Carpathians. It has not yet reached a point where a definite judgment can be passed on the events at any point. The conflict is likely to be waged some days yet with equal fierceness by both sides."

"The next few days will probably see the released Przemysl investment army engaged in this struggle."

An official announcement was given out by the war office as follows:

"German sea forces have assisted the land forces in the operations to the north of Memel, on the Baltic. They bombarded on Tuesday forenoon the village and castle of Polangen and kept under fire the road from Polangen to Libau."

MAIL FOOD TO GERMANY

Six Thousand Packages Sent by Parcel Post to Friends and Relatives.

Chicago, March 25.—Six thousand packages of food have been sent by Chicagoans to friends and relatives in Germany within the last four days by means of the parcel post, it was learned.

Waterproof paper boxes containing flour, rice, noodles, tea, cocoa, preserves and other foodstuffs, weighing not in excess of ten pounds, have been prepared by several stores, ready for shipment. Each package contains an assortment of foodstuffs and there are nine assortments. The cost of the package is from $1.90 to $2.15 post paid.

TAFT AS GOVERNOR'S GUEST

Former President Will Be Entertained at Executive Mansion.

Harrisburg, Pa., March 25.—Former President William H. Taft, when he comes to this city on April 15 to deliver his lecture at the Technical High School auditorium, will be the guest of Governor Brumbaugh at the executive mansion.

If Governor Brumbaugh's official duties do not interfere he will introduce Mr. Taft to the audience.

Clerk Held For $25,000 Mail Loss.

Kansas City, Mo., March 25.—Frank R. Oldfield, a clerk in the railway mail service, was arrested in Kansas City, Kan., by federal authorities and charged with robbery of the mails in connection with the disappearance of $25,000 in currency from a mail car bound from Kansas City to La Junta, Colo., early in April of 1912.

His New Acquaintance.

When John D. Rockefeller's motorcar stopped in front of a store in Yonkers the other day Thomas Murphy, a laborer, recognized the occupant of the car. As Mr. Rockefeller sat watching the crowd Murphy went up to the auto, and, stretching out his hand, exclaimed:

"Put her there, John, old man!"

Mr. Rockefeller started, smiled and then shook hands and chatted with Murphy a few minutes until the footman came out of the store. As Mr.

THEN SHOOK HANDS AND CHATTED.

Rockefeller drove away Murphy bowed and Mr. Rockefeller returned the salute.

"He's a fine man," was Murphy's comment to the crowd.

"Do you know him?" Murphy was asked.

"Sure I do now if I didn't before," was his answer.—New York Times.

Battleships Now and Then.

A battleship today is not the same as a battleship in Nelson's day. The old wooden three-decker could only be destroyed by long and desperate close quarter fighting. It would stand hours of shelling and still be capable of fighting. But today one unlucky shot, one blow from a torpedo, and the great fighting machine is a heap of scrap iron.—London Graphic.

Weeping Willows.

The weeping willow, so called (scientific name S. babylonica), is a native of China, from which country it has been taken over most of the civilized earth. It varies in height and dimensions according to climate and soil and invariably maintains its drooping habit, the chief cause of its attractiveness.—New York American.

"Times have changed for the better. Torture, for instance, is no longer allowed."

"I don't know about that. There are four families in this apartment whose children take music lessons." — Baltimore American.

"No, it was a safety match from the duke's point of view." — New York Globe.

BORROWING MONEY.

Be Sure Deferred Charges Can Be Met Before Incurring Them.

One reason why corporations have not been looked upon with friendly eyes is the fact that they have adopted financing methods of which we don't approve.

You and I have been taught to believe that we'd better do without a thing unless we have the money to pay for it. To us that seems to be safe and sane thrift doctrine.

But when corporations became numerous they adopted another plan. They decided not to wait until they could pay for what they wanted if they could borrow money with which to make the purchase. They began to load upon themselves "deferred charges."

Certain charges of this kind, of course, are justified; when it can be proved without the shadow of a doubt that what will be earned by borrowed money is more than the cost of the loan, borrowing is justified. But not otherwise.

So intelligent thrift practice in the home and the family can be measured by the same test. If you're going into debt to buy a home you should be able to demonstrate mathematically by borrowing money to buy a home you will in the end save more in rent than the cost of the land and house, repairs and taxes and insurance.

You have no business to place any "deferred charge" upon your individual resources or those of your family that those who come after you will not cheerfully pay because they recognize that it is a just charge. The test ought to be:

"If I should die tomorrow would my heirs prefer to go on meeting these charges rather than allow them to be defaulted?" It is when the answer of either the individual or a new board of corporation directors is in the negative that we see the unwisdom of much borrowing in anticipation of benefits or earnings.

If you're honest, "deferred charges" have to be met, and if you have had much experience you will know that it isn't often that the future develops as well as you think it will.—John M. Oskinson in Chicago News.

PRISONERS OF WAR.

Code of Honor by Which Their Treatment Is Governed.

In ancient times prisoners of war were killed unless, of course, the belligerents found it more profitable to exchange or liberate them for ransom. But today nations are bound to one another by a code of honor which forbids inhuman treatment of prisoners.

Prisoners are subjected to no punishment in any form. Neither must they be placed in a convict prison, although they may be detained in a fortress, camp or town. A reasonable supply of nourishment must be provided them by their captors, and they are regarded as being in the power of the government of the captor and not under the control of those who actually capture them.

All personal belongings remain in the custody of the prisoner, but arms, horses and military papers can be confiscated, these constituting booty.

Governments can put their prisoners of war to work, but only such work as accords with the prisoner's rank and capacity; also the work must not be excessive or relate to military matters, and in all cases must the labor be paid for.

A prisoner always lives in hope of being exchanged for a prisoner of his own government. The exchange is effected in accordance with agreements, in which time, place and method of exchange are fully detailed. This is generally that of strict equivalents, man for man, rank for rank, disability for disability.

An officer can obtain a greater freedom of movement or certain privileges while being a prisoner of war if he makes out a parole, a written or verbal promise. An officer giving his parole pledges his honor to refrain from a particular course of conduct, and if he makes a breach of this guarantee he is liable to the extreme penalty.—Pearson's Weekly.

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

SOLFERINO SOUP.

DINNER MENU.
Soup a la Solferino.
Smelts, Tartar Sauce. Veal Cutlet, Cream Sauce.
Mashed Potatoes. Asparagus.
Romaine and Pepper Salad. Cheese Wafers.
Prune Souffle. Coffee.

SOLFERINO soup is made after a Sardinian recipe said to have been used by Victor Emmanuel's troops during the famous battle of that name in 1859. To two quarts of well seasoned clear bouillon add the dumplings made in this way: Beat four eggs in a stewpan, add a half pint of cream, two ounces of fresh butter, pepper and salt to taste and enough flour to form the mixture into the consistency of dough. Mold it into round or egg shaped balls the size of large walnuts and fry them a delicate brown in butter; lay them in the bottom of the tureen and pour the hot bouillon over them.

Fried Smelts.

After the smelts are prepared, dip them in egg and fine crumbs, place them in a wire frying basket and fry a delicate brown in deep fat. Drain well and serve them in a napkin with slices of lemon and crisp garnish.

Veal Cutlet.

After the cutlet has been fried in butter remove from the pan. Then pour into the pan with the butter a cupful of milk and a half cupful of rich cream; thicken with a little very smooth flour and water, season and pour over the cutlet.

The asparagus may be served boiled with butter sauce or scalloped with cracker crumbs, butter, salt, pepper and a little grated English cheese.

Romaine Salad.

After careful washing cut the romaine for the salad into strips with the kitchen scissors, and cut the peppers also in very thin strips. Before making the French dressing rub the inside of the bowl with a bud of garlic.

Prune Souffle.

The souffle may be made by stoning a cupful and a half of stewed prunes and chopping them fine. Add the beaten whites of four eggs, two teaspoonfuls of powdered sugar, whip very light and turn into a pudding dish which has been very slightly greased. Bake until it puffs up, then remove from the oven and serve with whipped cream.

Under Fire

By WILLIAM CHANDLER

At twenty minutes past 3 o'clock in the morning, when the people in the town of Yarmouth, on the east coast of England, were wrapped in slumber, there sounded on the still air the stroke of a bell. Hundreds, thousands of persons started up and listened. Within a few seconds there was another and another stroke, until it was evident that not the hour was being struck, but an alarm. Then on the streets were heard sounds of men running, followed by a cry.

"Turn out! The Germans!" Then a boom, and in a few seconds a deafening explosion. The colonel of the woman's regiment jumped out of bed and into her uniform, descended to her headquarters on the floor below, where members of her staff were dressing, and seeing that there was delay said sharply: "Come, get a move on! Never mind that switch, Captain Blake. Say, you, there! Miss Brewster! What are you looking for—a bracelet? Never mind ornaments. The enemy is upon us, and there's no time to lose. Genevieve Malinwaring, put down that hand glass, turn out and help call the regiment to arms."

Each woman, as soon as she had finished her toilet, dashed out and away. Meanwhile members of the force came hurrying in, some jabbing pins into their alpaca hats, some buttoning their jackets, some pressing their hands upon their back hair to make sure that it was fast. As they arrived the companies fell in under their sergeants, and soon a line consisting of fully half the roster was drawn up in the street. Then the colonel, standing before the colors, gave the order to break into column, and placing herself at the head cried in a loud mezzo soprano voice:

"Forward!" Meanwhile a number of shells from a German war vessel were bursting here and there, some of them doing serious damage. The woman's regiment was marched to the street fronting on the water and came to a rest. During the march it was joined by members who had not arrived at the armory in time to join at the departure of the corps. Some of these ladies were buckling on their accouterments, others adjusting their hastily donned clothing. A lady had come forth in slippers, one of which she lost and was endeavoring to regain. Another as she ran was followed by her poodle, who barked as he galloped after her, evidently thinking his mistress was doing it all for his sport.

When the regiment was drawn up in line it was quite light. In the offing a German cruiser was steaming slowly past the town. The soldiers did not recognize her as a ship of war, and since she was not firing there was a ripple of chat along the line:

"Do lend me a hairpin." "Take care. You're pointing that gun right in my face." "Isn't it horrid of the Germans to wake us up at this time of the morning?" "What's it all about? I don't see anything of an enemy. They must have gone home."

Suddenly there was a flash on the cruiser, followed by a report, and a shell came shrieking over the water. It struck a house back of the regiment, exploded, and the detonation was followed by falling brick and mortar. Conversation stopped at once. The babel of voices was hushed as if it had been shut off by lightning. But not for long.

"My goodness gracious!" "Isn't that awful!" "The horrid things!" "Oh, land, that noise must have wakened my baby!"

Another shot came, struck the ground sloping to the sea a hundred yards before the line, and there was a rain of fragments. But fortunately the shell had struck too far in advance. That part of the line before which it fell broke away, but was quickly rallied by the officers.

The ladies stood their ground like heroines till the shooting ceased and the cruiser, turning her bow eastward, steamed away. Then it seemed that bedlam had broken loose all along the line. The color bearer fainted, but the colors were picked up by a woman of sterner stuff and held in their former position. A few shrieks arose from different parts of the line, but the principal din was composed of exclamations, shouts, cries of horror or victory mingled with maledictions on the Germans. Strange to say, there was much more fear now that they were steaming away than when they were sending "those horrid shells."

While the cruiser was growing less in the distance the colonel rode along the line and stopping in the center halted and made a short speech congratulating the women on their splendid behavior under fire. Then she gave the order bringing the regiment into column of platoons and started them for the armory.

All would have gone well for the rest of the women's behavior had it not been for some boys whom even German shells could not turn from their pranks. The boys tied together mouse colored rags which they attached to strings, then hid themselves along the street marched over by the women. At a given signal each boy pulled what was apparently a rodent through the ranks.

Every company through which the bundles were pulled broke and ran on to the stoops of the houses on the line of march.
